Optus RockCorps volunteers give Como Social and Leisure Centre a makeover

Como Social and Leisure Centre, a Special Work of the St Vincent de Paul Society, in conjunction with Illawarra Mental Health, will host around 70 volunteers as part of the Optus RockCorps initiative on Thursday 20 February.

The Como Social and Leisure Centre with Local Area Health Services provides recreational, educational, social and living skills and prevocational training programs opportunities for people living with a mental illness.

Optus RockCorps is a dynamic movement of people who volunteer their time in the local community and in return are given a ticket to the Optus RockCorps concert which will feature artists such as Samantha Jade and Rudimental.

The 70 volunteers will give the Centre's main hall a fresh coat of paint, refurbish the vegetable garden and assist in general maintenance of the Centre grounds.
